SPANISH WAR VETERANS. Celebration of Flag Day at Lawn Fete Last Night.

Flag day was appropriately celebrated by he United Spanish War Veterans last evening at 8 o'clock at Camp Clara Barton, established on the grounds at 13th and U streets northwest, where their annual lawn fete is in progress. The principal speaker of the evening was Captain Jas. E. Payne, an ex-confederate as well as a veteran of the late unpleasantness with Spain. He was warmly welcomed and his address was punctuated with hearty bursts of applause. Captain Payne referred to the flag as a symbol, voicing the sentiment of the south as he had found it in regard to the stars and stripes, and spoke of the united country with the one flag, which should "stay put" where the troops of the United States had carried it. Captain Payne served in the 6th Missouri Volun-teer Regiment during the civil war and in the 5th Missouri Volunteers during the war

The exercises were opened with a soprano solo by Mrs. Flora Lewis, who sang "The Star Spangled Banner," the audience joining in the chorus. The dancing pavilion was used as a stage and the large audience vas accommodated with benches placed on the lawn. Members of the 1st Regiment of Minute Men of the District of Columbia, under the command of Major Herbert W. Meyers, acted as a guard of honor and occupied seats upon the pavilion.

Following Captain Payne's address Miss Ford gave a recitation and then Mr. A. F. Springsteen, known as the "drummer boy of Missionary Ridge," gave an imitation of a battle on a snare drum. Mr. Springsteen enlisted when but evelen years old in an Indiana regiment and served throughout Commissioner H. B. F. Macfarland was introduced by Major F. S. Hodgson, in charge of the exercises, and spoke briefly, complimenting the United Spanish War Veterans upon their patriotic endeavors to stimulate interest and patriotism in the flag. The program was brought to a close with the singing of "America" by the au-

Tonight will be military and Grand Army night at the lawn fete. One of the features will be a realistic war dance, which will be given by the Order of Red Men, who will attend in a body. They will be escorted to the grounds by a detachment of Spanish War Veterans in uniform.

Progress in Construction of Great Falls and Old Dominion Road. Progress 's being made in the construction of the first seven miles of the Great Falls and Old Dominion electric line from Great Falls on the Virginia bank of the Potomac to this city. As the work of the first section of the route is nearing completion the officials of the railroad are giving consideration to the plans and details of the work in connection with the construction of the second section of the line.

A great portion of the work on the first section is fast nearing completion, and practically but little grading remains to be done The camps of the laborers now line the entire seven miles of the first section, and they are bending every effort to have the work completed as quickly as possible. All the preliminary details in connection with the building of the last section of the road, it is understood, have been arranged, and it will be pushed toward completion as rapidly as possible.

It is understood the officials of the railway have agreed upon the plans for the terminal facilities at the Virginia end of the route. It is the purpose of the com-pany, it is said, to build a large hotel and the other accessories to a summer resort at the terminus of the line. The type of the cars for the line, it is stated, has not yet been definitely agreed upon, but it is known they will be of the most modern pattern and heavily equipped.

The work of adapting the Aqueduct bridge to railway purposes for the use of the Great Falls and Old Dominion Company is also progressing satisfactorily. The break Sat-urday in the cofferdam built around pier No. 5 delayed the work somewhat. The leak has been patched up, however, and the water has again been pumped out of the

RECEPTION TO PASTOR.

Dr. and Mrs. Bristol Guests of Metropolitan Congregation.

A reception was tendered Dr. and Mrs. Frank M. Bristol of the Metropolitian Memorial Church last evening in the church parlors by the members of the congregation, as a mark of their esteem and as a welcome home to their pastor, who has recently returned from California, where he attended the biennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Thomas L. Tullock, Mrs. A. D. Lynch and Mrs. J. C. Tasker assisted Mrs. Bristol in greeting the members and their friends. An address of welcome was delivered by Justice Anderson of the District Supreme Court, to which Dr. Bristol responded. He said the church had the largest evening congregation of any church in the city, and that the membership is the largest it has ever been; that the Epworth League is also the largest, and that last year it had raised more money than in any previ-

ELECTION OF OFFICERS MADE SPECIAL ORDER FOR TODAY.

Commander Lee Talks on Lives Lost in Behalf of South-Dr. McKim's Address.

A dispatch from Nashville, Tenn., last night says: Under every condition tending to a successful reunion, Nashville today officially welcomed the United Confederate Veterans and their friends, constituting a host conservatively estimated at 30,000 people. The exercises of the day took place in the Tabernacle, and every bit of space was taken long before the veterans were called to order by Gen. George W. Gordon of Memphis, commander of the Tennessee di-

It was the first convention in the history of the organization that the Sons of Veterans sat with their fathers, and the cheers from the throats of the younger generation at almost every expression by those who took part in the strife forty years ago made it plain that the spirit of '61 would be perpetuated in generations to come. California was represented on the floor; from far-off Montana a delegation was sent, and Ohio was on hand with four delegates.

It was the fourteenth annual meeting and the first at which the distinguished cavalry officer, John B. Gordon, did not preside. A few steps to the rear of Gen. Stephen D. Lee, who occupied the chair, sat Gen. Gordon's widow and two daughters, Mrs. Bur-ton Smith of Atlanta and Mrs. Orton Bishop

Chief Figures of the Confederacy. To the right and to the left of them were seated many of the chief figures of the confederacy, and a charming array of beautifully gowned division and department sponsors. There was a notable curtailment of the sponsor feature of the reunion, and it was announced from the stage early that only the sponsors accredited to departments and divisions would be given seats on the

On the stage were Gen. Stephen D. Lee, the acting commander-in-chief, Columbus, Miss.; Gen. W. D. Jones of Richmond, Gen. C. H. Tebault of New Orleans, chief surgeon, Confederate States army, and Miss Corinne Tebault, sponsor-in-chief; Gen. W. E. Mickle of New Orleans, adjutant general; Gen. W. S. Cabell, commanding the trans-Mississippi division; Gen. A. J. West of Atlanta, commanding the North Georgia Brigade; Gen. C. Irvine Walker, command-ing the Department of Virginia, and Gen. Clement A. Evans of Atlanta, who suc ceeded Gen. Stephen D. Lee as commander of the Department of Tennessee.

Welcomed by Gov. Frazier.

After General Lee had called the veterans to order, Chaplain Jones delivered the invocation. Gov. J. B. Frazier welcomed the delegates to Tennessee in a splendid address. Twice he started to his seat, only to be recalled. Among other things, Governor Frazier said:

"When that grand man, that patriot, that noble Christian soldier, Gen. Robert E. Lee, surrendered at Appomattox, he spoke with a heart too full for deceit, in that no scuthern mother swore her son to bitterness. She swore him to love and honor. All accepted the inevitable finality. When you saw furled for the last time the stars and bars you had followed for four years, when you had made your last final march back to your homes, had a final farewell to your comrades, and found the sainted mother's grave sleeping in the family cem-etery, the beautiful home in ruin and ashes, when you pressed upon your wife's lips a loving kiss, you sealed a solemn pledge that from that day on you would know but one country and but one flag." After Col. A. S. Williams, mayor of Nashville, had extended the city's welcome, General Gordon brought forward Gen-Stephen D. Lee as the permanent presiding officer and commander-in-chief. General Lee's appearance was the signal for a remarkable outburst of enthusiasm. Cheer after cheer greeted him. Hats, canes, handkerchiefs and coats went into the air lery added its vociferous voice to the demonstration. The band took up the spirit of the occasion, and General Lee was kept bowing from side to side for several minutes. He said:

Gen. Stephen Lee's Address.

"I wonder sometimes whether, when the great balances of the universe are poised and the great judgment of the ancient of days are rendered, whether even when the last numan history is written of the war between the states, and the slow verdict of remote posterity is taken, the cause we leved will seem as lost as it once seemed to us. It may be that, in the providence of God and the development of humanity, the fearful sacrifices were necessary for the highest good of this nation and of the "Truly in human experience, without the shedding of blood, there is no redemption. Rather let us believe that the world is richer and better, purer and greater, for the tragic story of forty years ago, and that the shed blood has brought blessing, honor, glory and power, incorruptible treasures of which a brave and noble people can never be despoiled.

"It is a source of joy to every one of us when we see how prosperous our country has grown. I think we are convinced now that the south is fully on its feet again. In material prosperity we have not only reached but surpassed the achievements of our fathers.

"I hold no view of southern degeneracy, but I deplore the irreparable loss to my country and the coming generations when those spiendid men, the bravest and best the world has ever held, went down in death. Put it is a great comfort to know that the south had such men to lose. It was a revenation to the world. It was a revelation to ourselves.

"As the close of our days draws near, and the work of upbuilding our country passes into younger and stronger hands, let us make it our mission to tell the story. not let our children and grandchildren forget the cause for which we suffered. Tell it not in anger; tell it not in grief; tell it not in revenge; tell it proudly, as fits a

"There is no shame in all the history "There is no shame in all the history. Dwell on the gallant deeds, the pure motives, the unselfish sacrifices. Tell of the hardships endured, the battles fought, the men who bravely lived, the men who nobly died. Your dear comrades shall live again in your words.

"The cause in which their blood was shed will never be lost to us, and the love we gave it will not die till the last gray jacket is folded and the last gray head is buried beneath the sod.

The United Sons of Veterans met in Watkins' Hall this afternoon. The delegates were called to order by Commandant Dewitt of the Joe Johnston Camp of Nashville. Col. Dewitt delivered an address of welcome, to which United States Senator William B. Bates responded. Gen. Bates man," John B. Gordon.

A welcome was also voiced by Col. Homer D. Higgins of Greenfield, Tenn., commer D. Higgins of Greenheid, Tenn., commander of the Tennessee division. The convention was turned over to Col. W. E. Daniels of Yazoo City, Miss., commander of the Department of Tennessee, who introduced William McL. Fayssoux of New Orleans, commander-in-chief of the veter-Col. Faysoux appointed committees on credentials, resolutions and good of the order, after which the convention adjourned until tomorrow, when officers will be elected.

The Jefferson Davis memorial services, under the auspices of the Southern Confederate Memorial Association, held at Christ's Church Cathedral, was one of the notable meetings of the day. Bishop Thomas Gailor of the Episcopal diocese of Tennessee delivered the memorial address. The association retained its old officers, with the exception of a successor to Vice Presi-dent W. R. Garrett of Nashville, who died said the objects of the organization were to perpetuate the history of the confederacy and to see that it remains untarnished. He and other veterans, the general said, would not be here much longer, and the sons would soon be called upon to preserve history. He made a plea for the preservation of southern songs.

Mrs. Kate Lytton Hickman of Nashville welcomed the sons on behalf of the Daughters of the Confederacy. She was followed by Col. Biscoe Hindman of Louisville, past commander, in a graceful speech. Col. Hindman referred to the fact that while so many of the old veterans were crossing the river, it was beautiful to know that they were joining such men as Lee, Stone-eration after generation.

"We thank God that today the sun shines upon a truly reunited country. Sectionalism fallen cause? Not so. The love and loyalty which we give to the lost cause, and to the defeated banner, is demonstration of the deep hold that cause had upon the hearts of the southern people, and of the absolute sincerity and of the complete devotion with which they supported it; but it is no evidence of unmanly and fruitless repining over defeat, nor of any lurking disloyalty to the Union in which now, thank God, the southern states have equal rights and privileges with all the other states of our broad land.

"We accepted the results of the war in good faith. We abide the arbitrament of the sword. We subscribe as sincerely as the men who fought against us to the sentiment, 'one flag, one country, one constitution, one destiny.' This is now for us an incomplete devotion with which they supported it; but it is no evidence of unmanly and fruitless repining over defeat, nor of any lurking disloyalty to the Union in which now, thank God, the southern states have equal rights and privileges with all the other states of our broad land.
